

DIANA FRIEDMAN KNOWS THAT LAW, like art, requires talent, hard work, and constant attention to detail. These qualities have made her a standout in her field. For the second year in a row, Friedman has been recognized as a Super Lawyer by her peers. This year, she was also named one of the top 50 female lawyers in Texas. A fellow in the American Academy of Matrimonial Lawyers, and a frequent writer and speaker on family law topics, Friedman excels at helping people resolve their family law issues.

CONCENTRATION: Family law, including complex divorce proceedings, child custody, visitation rights, alimony or spousal support, child support, prenuptial agreements, postnuptial agreements, paternity, and adoption.

“EVERY CASE IS AN ORIGINAL.”

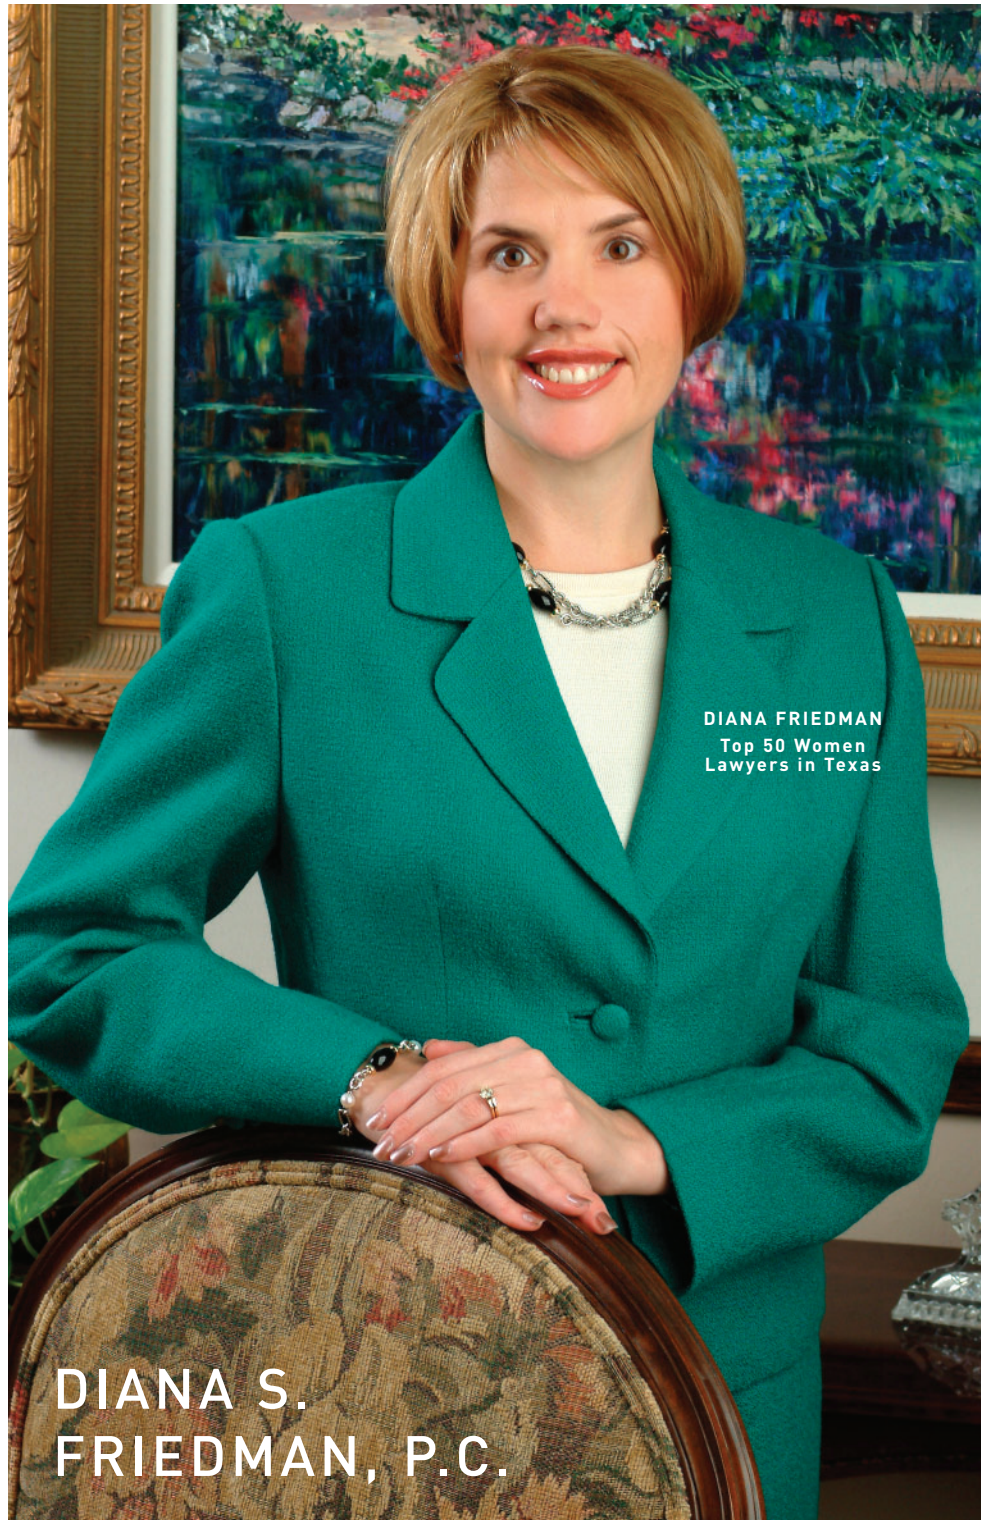

THE ART OF FAMILY LAW: Friedman has spent 13 years handling complex family law issues. Her goal is to move cases to conclusion as quickly as possible, so that clients can resume their lives. “Divorce can be a difficult and painful decision,” Friedman says. “People are worried about their financial future. They’re worried about their children. We help people get through that and provide them with certainty and stability going forward.”

GETTING THE BIG PICTURE: Different cases require different styles. Like any good artist, Friedman has the range and versatility to tailor her approach based on what’s best for each individual client. In cases that benefit from negotiation, she’s a persuasive negotiator who helps clients reach favorable and fair settlements without going to court. In cases where trial becomes necessary, she’s a skilled and tenacious litigator, driven to protect her clients, their children, and their assets. In all cases, she is discreet and confidential with clients’ personal matters.

FILLING IN THE PIECES: A math whiz, Friedman excels at complicated property issues that can intimidate many people, including family partnerships, trusts, estates, subchapter S corporations, and family limited partnerships. “In order to separate property, you have to first know what it is,” she says. She is equally skilled at tackling tough child custody cases. Says Friedman: “The key is to find the right solution for each client’s situation. You can’t take a paint-by-numbers approach when you’re talking about people’s lives.”
